

(Enabled only when team is in LAUNCH mode)

The project page puts the presentation of the project idea front and center. This could be a video of their presentation, a slideshow, an interactive (embedded) demo, or just a screenshot.

The main points of the projects in tweet-form.

Buttons pointing to the website, source code, up to 5 key locations where the project lives.

(Shown once the project is ANNOUNCED)

A brief headline which communicates the intent of the project in a few words.

The timeline shows any information the team chooses to share about their progress.

We put the team members prominently here.

Ability to leave public or private responses to the project team.

A commitment to the hacker ethic / code is displayed prominently as platform feature.

(Shown once DEVELOPMENT has started)

The team's status, pre-defined or free text.

List of current tasks from their bug tracker.

Various graphs describing the activity of contributors to designs, code, updates, ..

Opportunity to support the project financially.

(Shown as soon as a team has FORMED)

The challenge and vital resources, such as data sources, platforms, hardware, experts.. available and being used in this project.

List of tools that the team has used, such as open source software or collaboration tools.

Information about how to join the event, links to community platforms, etc.

